

WHEN YOU NEED AN EXTRA BOOST, HELP IS HERE!

Versalence provides a variety of services for control systems. With experience on over 100 years of controls, our staff is able to assist in a variety of ways.

Phone support is the first line of defense. Several issues can be solved quickly with a little bit of assistance. This service does require a minimal amount of client knowledge.

Phone support is available for those times where a little information is needed to head down the right path. This service is free of charge when a minor issue is blocking progress. Extended phone support is available at a minimal charge for more in-depth issues.

Field service is available for those times when the issue was not able to be solved over the phone or the knowledge or availability of the client's resources is just not sufficient.

Field service is also available to assist in unit maintenance. Maintenance services include both minor and major overhauls, basic calibrations and testing. The service may be either interactive or completed without assistance.
